Summary of cancer treatment: cure or amelioration of cancer by using mineral remedies

Eine kurze Übersicht zur Krebsbehandlung: Heilung oder Verbesserung von Tumorleiden durch den Gebrauch mineralischer Arzneien

The results using potentized mineral remedies to treat cancer are presented on the basis of eight cases. In relation to conventional treatment, each of the cases shows significant amelioration or cure once homeopathic treatment is started.

Methods: The anamnesis is mainly based on the life conflict and the mental conditions of the patient. The mental constellation of the patient represents the very source of one's disease and indicates a specific remedy. Local symptoms have to fit the overall healing capacity of the chosen remedy. In principle a repertorization is made on the elaboration of the periodic table by J. Scholten. Usually group analysis easily reveals one element of the mineral (e.g. bar), the second one has to be elaborated carefully (e.g. phos for bar-p).

Results: Remedies used by this method show a deep action upon the psychological constellation of the patient and are capable of dissolving malignant tissues to restore health. Correct prescriptions act promptly, enabling a healing process to take place, even if the patient is resistant to conventional therapy, i.e. surgery, radiation, chemotherapy.

Conclusions: In comparison to higher biological entities (plants, animals, nosodes) used in homeopathy, elements/salts are simple in their structure (atoms, molecules). However in their potentized form, they represent life-themes associated with a given mineral as well as with the patient's life conflict (law of similarity). Indeed, we compare the energized state of the mineral, which is equivalent to a theme, an archetype, with the mental constitution of the patient. The tumour as a local symptom is a result of the disturbed life-force (C. Burnett, Curability of Tumours) and only part of the system. Since elements and minerals are the tiniest and most archaic units, out of which life springs, the potentized forms represent pristine archetypes, which must have profound organizing capacities (carbon for father/self-confidence and their attributes, chlorine for mother or child and their attributes, silica for the family and its attributes, and iodine for cultural transformation – see cases overleaf). In most cases the psychological constellation is already evident in early childhood and is more fully manifested later on.
